#	Responses	Date
1	funding for projects and education tours	2/25/2015 10:11 AM
2	Coordinating and securing funding; coordinating collaborative plan implementation; building/maintaining successful partnerships; communicating success/progress/opportunities	2/23/2015 10:28 AM
3	Coordination of efforts and information sharing.	2/10/2015 3:21 PM
4	Grant facilitation	2/9/2015 9:14 PM
5	Knowledge about and prioritization of the needs in the basin that are important to recovery.	2/9/2015 11:38 AM
6	The Edmonds Marsh could be a "poster child" for WRIA8 in the daylighting of Willow Creek as this is the only unique fresh water to salt water habitat remaining. I appreciate all that WRIA8 has done for Edmonds in this regard and I have learned a lot from the environmental experts.	2/9/2015 11:07 AM
7	A framework for organizing salmon recovery	2/9/2015 8:21 AM
8	new science and great coordination	2/6/2015 5:49 PM
9	WRIA 8 makes available a broad range of information relating to salmon recovery and habitat restoration through the web site and other means.	2/6/2015 3:22 PM
10	Presentations, technical details, hopefully money	2/6/2015 1:01 PM

Q4 Does the WRIA 8 team allocate effort appropriately across program areas or initiatives? If not, what changes would you like to see?

Answered: 11 Skipped: 4

#	Responses	Date
1	see comment on #5	2/25/2015 10:11 AM
2	yes- they make excellent use of tight resources	2/23/2015 10:28 AM
3	They seem to do a good job of allocating their limited resources across multiple and competing priorities, programs, and initiatives.	2/10/2015 3:21 PM
4	It is largely focused on the Cedar River & Issaquah Creek without much attention to urban areas or Puget Sound coastal tribes	2/9/2015 9:14 PM
5	Now that I sit on the granting committee, I would say yes as I was unaware of the process and applicants. Of course, Edmonds would love to see funding for our beach ranger programs but those funds came from a King County fund - so it would be hard to justify funding in Snohomish.	2/9/2015 11:07 AM
6	Yes	2/9/2015 8:21 AM
7	Yes, WRIA 8 team appropriates the effort in the areas of most need and outcome for investment. It is not always an equitable division by member and should never not be the main criteria	2/6/2015 6:38 PM
8	yes	2/6/2015 5:49 PM
9	Salmon recovery has been addressed in other locations. For example, previously I lived in Basel, Switzerland where there were enormous pollution problems and the salmon population decreased dramatically. The Swiss have made great progress in bringing pollution under control and restoring the fish population. How did they achieve this? I'd like to see more information about what has and has not worked elsewhere.	2/6/2015 3:22 PM
10	yes	2/6/2015 1:03 PM

#	Responses	Date
1	It would be good to have more work done in the north end for us Snohomish County cities.	2/25/2015 10:11 AM
2	The technical committee meetings need to be run more efficiently and shortened to 2 hours. 3 hours is too time consuming.	2/23/2015 10:28 AM
3	WRIA 8 Team members are consistently well informed, professional, fairminded, and pleasant to work with.	2/10/2015 3:21 PM
4	WRIA8 has great staff	2/9/2015 9:14 PM
5	This committee needs to expose itself to more Cities by coming and providing updated presentations to the Council. I don't think our Council really understands the importance, intellect, and power of this group.	2/9/2015 11:07 AM
6	I have not attended a meeting, so I truly don't have honest assessments at this point.	2/8/2015 1:50 PM
7	great work--the best group in the country!	2/6/2015 5:49 PM
8	As a scientist I would like to see science play a larger role in salmon recovery. We have incredible resources in the Seattle area-- let's use them! Also, the WRIA 8 committee contains many capable representatives. I would like to see these people more involved. Jason has made some significant advances in this are but I believe the Committee has more to offer.	2/6/2015 3:22 PM

1	what works best.	2/9/2015 11:07 AM
2	I'm swamped with email and web information-- easy and inexpensive but not particularly effective in my opinion. I think we need more personal contact- for example, the current program to visit the towns and make presentations to the Councils seems like a good idea.	2/6/2015 3:22 PM
3	flyer with salmon recovery progress and "what you can do"	2/6/2015 1:01 PM
